

Apostrophes for omission

Apostrophes for possession

Adjectives

Adverbs

Subordinating conjunctions

Coordinating conjunctions

Question sentences

Exclamation sentences

Past tense verbs

The diver's flippers were black.	The sharks' mouths opened to reveal their sharp teeth.
Marlin's fins flapped as he swam.	Dory couldn't remember where Marlin had gone.
The octopus wasn't scary.	The jellyfish didn't sting Marlin or Dory.
The fish swam down to the dark, murky waters of the deep sea.	The giant, blue whale was lurking behind them.
The shimmering, shiny scales of the rainbow fish were beautiful.	Bruce swam speedily towards his prey.
The waves crashed loudly onto the shore.	Suddenly, a boat appeared above them.
Nemo was terrified because Darla was coming towards him.	Mr Ray realised that Nemo had disappeared when he turned around.
Marlin wondered what would happen if Nemo had been taken by the diver.	Nigel's beak was sharp and pointy.
Marlin searched but he could not find Nemo anywhere.	Dory had not remembered anything yet.
Wherever could Nemo be?	How on earth were they going to get out of the whale's belly?
Surely Bruce wasn't going to eat them?	Finally, they had found Nemo!
Out of nowhere, a whale appeared behind them!	You'll never believe what happened next!

Marlin watched helplessly as Nemo was taken away by the diver.	Dory cried out in whale language.
Nigel scooped Marlin and Dory up in his beak and carried them to shore.	Bruce's teeth were as pointy as a sharp nail.
It was going to be a very exciting adventure!	Marlin was so relieved, he swam over to Nemo as fast as he could.